Cupping therapy is a form of alternative medicine in which a local suction is created on the skin. Cupping has been characterized as a pseudoscience. There is no good evidence it has any health benefits, and there are some risks of harm, especially from fire and wet cupping. Cupping therapy was used in Egypt dating back some 3,500 years, where its use is represented in hieroglyphic writing. The earliest recorded use of Cupping is from the famous Taoist alchemist and herbalist, Ge Hong (281–341 A.D.).⁴ Mechanism of cupping therapy. Qi (? qì) permeates everything which is not only the vital energy of life but also the transferable energy. It is the quality attribute that determines the state of one's health and life span. Cupping therapy is an ancient form of alternative medicine. In ancient times (cupping with animal angle) was also known as "corner method." This cupping method uses heat to eliminate the air in the cup causing negative pressure on a specific area.
