From the mom-and-pop variety store to the multinational corporation, the world of business is the very bedrock of our legal system. However, sole proprietorships are problematic because the owner's personal assets can be reached by creditors for business matters. Partnerships: This is a business owned by two or more people, who share equally in profits and losses. Partnerships involve a number of different legal considerations that you should familiarize yourself with. A business entity is one of the most commonly used asset protection instruments. There are different kinds of business ownership types, such as sole proprietorships, general partnerships, corporations, and limited liability companies. Sole proprietorships and general partnerships are typically the easiest and most cost-effective business entities.
